LORENZO YOUNG IN SHELBY JAIL

Sheriff and Detail of Militia
Bring Murderer From Nashville.

Lorenzo Young, negro, brought from Nashville, is now in the county jail awaiting trial Monday in second criminal court on a charge of murdering Sgt. John G. Brinkley, popular Memphis policeman, on June 11.

Young was brought from the state penitentiary late Thursday by Sheriff Perry and a guard of soldiers detailed by Gov. Roberts. He was heavily shackled.

Young, a common chicken thief, ran amok when officers sought to arrest him, shot Sgt. Brinkley to death and wounded four others before he was finally captured and taken to the police station. He was badly wounded by the officers.

The guard of soldiers accompanying Sheriff Perry to Memphis with the murderer consisted of Maj. Maurice Roberts and Privates Bonnie Gray and Marvin Wilson, members of the national guard. The major is the governor's son.

If the Bray case is still on trial in the second criminal court Monday, the trial of the negro will be postponed. The following letter addressed to Col. Ewing Carruthers from the governor was handed to Sheriff Perry on Friday: "Dear Colonel: Sheriff Perry may need your assistance in protecting Lorenzo Young, colored. If so, kindly be in readiness to aid him when called upon."

Sheriff Perry said Friday that he had heard no threats to attempt to lynch the negro, but would take all necessary precautions to see that the law takes its course. He will have a special guard at the jail from now until the end of the trial.

LIEGE PARROT PINCHED FOR BERING HUNS

LIEGE, Sept. 24.—One of the humorous incidents of the German occupation of this city which now are being described in detail of the arrest by German police of a parrot on the complaint that it had repeated the cry "Down with the Boches." According to the story, the parrot was kept prisoner for a month. The woman who owned it finally convinced the German authorities that the parrot could not pronounce "B" and the bird was released.

Did Not Have Single Friend in Europe.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—When President Wilson ended his work at the Paris conference "the United States had not a friend in Europe, Asia or Africa and our brilliant service in the war was almost forgotten in the storm of protest which followed him as he sailed for home," Senator Cummins, Republican, of Iowa, declared today in an address in the senate, attacking the league of nations covenant.

"The only thing the president brought with him which was joyfully received in America by multitudes of good people," Senator Cummins said, "was a covenant for a league of nations, and this only because these people believed, many of them without inquiry, that the league of nations would bring peace to a weary world and would maintain it in all the years to come. Gradually they are beginning to see the tremendous burdens we are asked to assume and gradually they are understanding that there are some provisions in the covenant which inevitably must provoke war."

Senator Cummins deplored the attempt of some senators to charge other senators with opposing the treaty simply to discredit the president and to accomplish their political designs, as well as efforts of the latter group to make it appear that those supporting the president were indifferent, if not hostile, toward the vital concerns of their own country.

"The casual observer in the senate," he added, "would be inclined to reach the conclusion that the most influential senators upon this side of the chamber are altogether insensible to the awful horrors of war and are determined to keep the world in conflict simply to antagonize the president or to work out some petty ambition for party supremacy while at the same time he could not well resist the inference that the most persuasive senators upon the other side of the chamber are bent on wrecking their own country simply to vindicate the infallibility of the chief executive in his work at Paris."

Senator Cummins contended that when the war ended "our exit should have been as speedy and as complete as possible." This did not mean, however, he added, that the United States should have abandoned its allies or have made a separate peace with Germany, "but it does mean that it was our duty to associate ourselves with foreign powers in reforming the map of the world and in agreeing to maintain it as the victors had made it."

Condemning disposition of Shantung, Senator Cummins said he wanted to relieve the American republic "from the eternal odium of the Shantung crime," and "from the disgrace of causing over Thrace to Bulgaria." There would be many Shantungs, he said, and if the principal associated powers worked in harmony it would mean nothing less than complete and arbitrary power of the world. As much as he deplored the wrong done China, he would adhere, he said, to the principles he had previously announced and vote against the committee amendment awarding the province to China.

The man who attempts to preach the doctrine that peace with Germany, with or without the league of nations, means peace for the world in the relations of men with men, or producing, selling and buying according to ancient customs, inflicts incalculable injury on the public.

"If America," he said, "is shackled to the proposed league of nations just as it is written, she will go blindly and blunderingly into the future, incapable of guiding her own people safely through these dark and difficult days."

SWISS TEXTILE MEN SEE MEMPHIS AT WORK

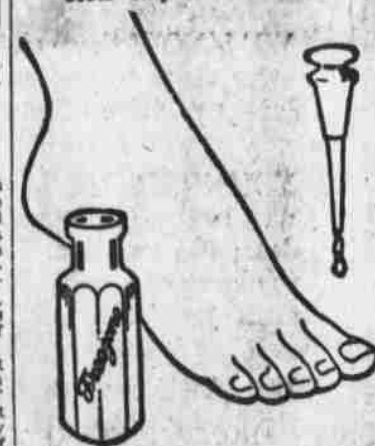

The delegation of textile and chemical experts of the Swiss cotton-weaving trade, who arrived in Memphis Thursday, is getting a close-up view of many of Memphis' industries Friday. They visited the George R. James farm near Forest Hill during the morning, and a number of the wood working plants and one or two of the cotton oil mills during the afternoon.

They were guests of the special committee from the Chamber of Commerce Friday at lunch at the Country club. Thursday, after the luncheon in their honor at the Chamber of Commerce, they spent the afternoon at the great cotton warehouses of the Memphis Terminal corporation, the largest in the world, where they were the guests of W. G. Turner and other officers of the company. They were guests Thursday night at the Tri-State fair.

Saturday will be spent in an auto tour through Northern Mississippi where they will pass over roads lined with cotton patches and can see the methods used in picking and storing the cotton on the plantations. They will spend some time on the big plantations at Robinsonville, and will return into Saturday.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your finger! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet. A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

Don't let skin trouble spoil your good time

Resinol heals sick skins

"I can't have any fun! I am such a right with this eczema that people avoid me wherever I go. And the itching torments me so that I don't get any peace, anyhow."

Don't be discouraged! Even in severe, well-established cases of eczema, ringworm or similar skin-troubles, Resinol Ointment, aided by Resinol Soap, usually relieves the itching at once and quickly clears the eruption away.

Doctors prescribe the Resinol treatment. All drug stores sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap.

PEOPLE OF MEMPHIS!

GO TO THE

Tri-State Fair TODAY

Note the crowded conditions of the grounds and buildings and the imperative need of more room and a better arrangement of the buildings.

For lack of room and proper arrangement the Fair is forced to clutter the front and sides of the buildings with unsightly stands and concessions.

The roadways are so narrow that it is impossible to get from one building to another in comfort.

As now arranged there is no room to beautify the grounds and buildings with flowers and shrubs. There are no shady, restful spots where one can sit and rest.

The buildings originally erected in 1908 were expected to answer their purpose for five years. They are now in bad repair and inadequate to care for the growth of exhibits.

The Fair was this year compelled to turn away exhibits. To care for those in the Poultry Building it was necessary to double-deck the coops, thus destroying much of the beauty of the show. The cattle, swine and sheep buildings were entirely inadequate to house the stock that came to the Fair, and we will have more another year.

The machinery exhibits are badly located. There is not the right kind of room for parking cars. New buildings are needed for new exhibits.

The exhibits as a whole this year surpass those of most of the large state fairs. At the same time we are spending less for improvements than any other Fair of importance in the United States. The water, sewerage and other comfort facilities are also entirely inadequate.

If the Tri-State Fair is to hold its own and not go backward, better facilities must be provided at once.

Three hundred thousand dollars should be spent for improvements during the next two years. These improvements should be started immediately after the close of the Fair. To do this it is going to be necessary to provide for same out of funds other than those received from Fair operation.

A special fund must be raised for this purpose. The business interests of Memphis, the city and the county should provide this fund.

The City of Memphis has been liberal in providing funds for civic improvements. The Fair is unquestionably one of the city's best assets and will furnish bountiful returns for all assistance given.

Let's all pull together, properly equip the Fair, thereby enabling it to fulfill its mission to the fullest extent.

Mr. Jas. Wright Brown Has Worn His Guilfoyle Suit for Twelve Years

You Regulate Your Own Deliveries—First Come First Served

While in New Orleans this week attending the Advertisers' Convention, the writer of this advertisement ran across Mr. James Wright Brown, of New York, editor of the "Editor and Publisher."

During our conversation Mr. Brown mentioned the fact that he was today wearing a suit that was made for him twelve years ago in the Guilfoyle Shop. This incident is told merely to drive home the truth that in Guilfoyle Clothes "Quality Remains Long After Price Is Forgotten."
